

VISUAL: INT. RETIREMENT HOME REC ROOM – DAY

VISUAL: Seven SENIORS (early 70s-90s) are paired with seven HIGH SCHOOLERS (ages 16-18). They socialize, laugh and truly enjoy each other's company. Their TEACHER (40s) is stealthily handing out two movie tickets to students.

VISUAL: WALT PHILLIPS (early 80s) sits playing chess against himself as JAYLEN TURNER (18) stands aloof futzing with two movie tickets, but within Walt's peripheral vision. Without looking at Jaylen:

WALT: You play chess?

VISUAL: Walt starts to reset the board.

JAYLEN: (sarcastically) No, do you?

WALT: I'll teach you.

JAYLEN: I'll school you.

VISUAL: Walt gestures Jaylen to sit.

VISUAL: Jaylen reluctantly sits. Helps Walt reset the board with the black pieces in front of Walt. Jaylen and Walt start playing... speed chess without a timer. It is obvious Jaylen knows how to play. Well.

JAYLEN: 'Jaylen.'

WALT: Good guess, my name is 'Walt.'

VISUAL: Jaylen cracks a smile.

JAYLEN: So, Walt, you're supposed to save me?

WALT: I thought you were supposed to save me.

JAYLEN: Ha-ha. Figures they'd pair up two 'misfits.'

WALT: 'They' think I have nothing left to give.

JAYLEN: And ‘they’ think that I’ll never have anything to give.

TOGETHER: Let’s prove them wrong.

VISUAL: They laugh.

WALT: I believe in you, young man.

JAYLEN: Yeah, I believe in you too, not-so-old man.

VISUAL: Jaylen and Walt smile. Walt shakes Jaylen’s hand. Jaylen fist bumps Walt. Walt is game.

VISUAL: Jaylen slides the two movie tickets to Walt. Walt slides one back. Jaylen can’t help but nod and smile.

Note: My son Georgie beat the family chess king Uncle Jerry when Georgie was only seven. That's the last time Uncle Jerry ever played him. Also note that I was not hired by VolunteerMatch to write this.
